BEVERLY HILLS - SATURDAY - APRIL 18, 2009

We're off to two of the city's premiere collections.

SUSAN AND LEONARD NIMOY have a superb assemblage of modern and contemporary art. Passionate and dedicated collectors, the Nimoy's have underwritten many exhibitions through their foundation. Susan has been a trustee at MOCA for many years; Leonard is an accomplished photographer - an important artist in his own right -- as well as an acclaimed actor.

MOCA trustee

ROSETTE DELUG

has a cutting-edge collection in a beautiful contemporary home.

The 20,000 square foot mansion is filled with contemporary art that is international in scope, with an emphasis on both renowned artists of our era and younger artists working in the 21st century. Stunning vintage furnishings from the 1920's to the present, complement the collection and place a focus on Rosette's interest in design as well as contemporary art.
