very private places

We're off to visit young and adventuresome collector and MOCA patron Danny First, whose taste ranges from noted photographers to grand names like Kiki Smith, and emerging artists you will see for the first time here, in his newly designed home near Hancock park. Our visit will be followed by luncheon at the beloved restaurant Campanile, where we will be joined by Sidney Felsen, founder of Gemini G.E.L., and Joni Weyl of Joni Weyl at Gemini G.E.L., New York and Los Angeles. Following delicious goodies, we are invited to the Felsen's home – a privilege virtually never extended – to talk about collecting works of art on paper, and walk through the Felsen collection – one of the most personal in the world, where each piece has been created especially for them. More than a collection, it is a history of the most personal thoughts and remembrances by such renowned artists as David Hockney, Robert Rauschenberg, Ed Ruscha, John Baldessari, Bruce Nauman, Susan Rothenberg and many more.

Meet at Coco's / Macys at 9:30am, depart at 9:40am.
Places are available for 26 people, first-come, first-served
